

I believe in being true to yourself, not changing to fit to the expectations and views others want you to be. For the past year and a half, I became friends with a person that always cares about what others think about her. I would say to her that you should know not to limit yourself, especially when she's trying to fulfill your true potential. That you should stop trying to paint the perfect picture of yourself just to fit in with society and their expectations. Everyone has flaws, and more times than not, we all share the same flaws we're trying to hide from the world. I think that we all need to set aside some time to figure out who we are and find how to flourish above and beyond. They will be your true thoughts and feelings, not the ones that are thrown at you from your surrounding peers. Not the ones that come from your family, and not the ones that were already there since way before you were born.

Yennifer Fuentes Fall 2017

This zine was printed on a Risograph MZ1090 in the Risograph Lab at St. Edwards University Department of Visual Studies.
@risographlab

BE TRUE TO YOUR SELF